Extract of a Letter from Amsterdam, dated May 11.

THE Third of this Month will for ever be placed in the Kalends of the Republick, as one of those happy Days, in which some Event has happened that immortalizes the Remembrance of them, seeing it was on this Day that the States of the Province of Holland, at the earnest Request, and even absolute Demand of the Burghers, Peasants, Sailors, People in general, the Noblesse, French Protestants, Jews, and indeed of all the Sects who were good Patriots, elected the Prince of ORANGE Stadtholder. The Joy that was expressed on Occasion of this great Event, was either as sincere as it was general, or the Hypocrites were exceedingly well mask'd; no Body being capable of discovering one by his Exterior, all wearing something or other of Orange Colour, and readily and to Appearance chearfully answering to the Demand of Qui vive? ORANGE, ORANGE. In short, the Rejoicings continued till Four o'Clock in the Morning, and the Spanish Ambassador surpassed all the other foreign Ministers in the Illumination of the Form of his House; Nay, even the Secretary to the French Embassy distinguish'd himself on this Occasion: But this last every Body must be sensible politically acted thus, to secure himself from popular Fury, and the Hotel of France from being pull'd about his Ears.

The Person who went Express to Leuwarden with the Resolution the Province of Holland had taken to declare his Serene Highness Stadtholder, had 2000 Florins and a Gold Snuff Box given him, such a Present as is not mentioned to have been given by any Deputy, powerful Lord of the State, or Burgomaster, in all the Annals of the Republick. There is nothing heard in all the Cities, Town and Villages, but long live the STADTHOLDER, and every Body shews an incredible Zeal. The Republick, People say, is going to recover its antient Lustre, and the Force which it had in the Time of King William III. of glorious Memory. Money will now issue from the Coffers of the Misers who have kept it sequestered there near forty Years: The Graces, and Pleasures, and the Sports, which Avarice had proscribed and banished from this Capital and other Cities of the Batavians, will return from the four Quarters of the World to adorn the Court of the new Stadtholder, will march in his Train, and execute the Orders of this august and generous Prince: And now the Hague will become the Delight of the Foreigner, and the Residence of the Joyous, whereas it has for many Years had the Appearance of the Valley of Shadow of Death.

'The Time approaches when we shall see many Alterations, and the Continuance of a bloody War.'

Extract from a Letter from Amsterdam, dated May 12.

'I found all here in vast Profusion of Joy, by reason of the Expectation of the Prince of ORANGE, who with the Princess lay here last Night, and set out this Morning at Six for the Hague, in order to pay their Compliments to their first Friends the Province of Zealand; a mighty Revolution, and a most critical one! The French, in Concert with the Deputies of Hoorn, Dort, &c. undertook by the Advice of M. Saxe, the Attack of Dutch Flanders; and the End proposed was, to bring the Zealanders to consent to the Neutrality, which all the other Provinces were desirous of. This in Fact was admitted by Count Lowendahl, who told a Dutch Officer, who was taken Prisoner at Sluys, and lamented the shameful Defence the Garrison made; 'Sir, (says the Count) don't be concern'd, it is well known by some of your Countrymen, that every Thing is done according to Agreement, and as it ought to be.'

An Extract of a Letter from a Person of Distinction at the Hague, dated May 12.

'The Time does not now seem to be near of seeing a Peace sign'd by the Republick of the United Provinces, and much less a Neutrality, but rather of a War being declared against France, which will certainly be the Fact as soon as his Serene Highness the Prince of ORANGE is fixed in his Stadtholdership, and that without waiting to see the Event of a Battle in the Low-Countries. According to some private Letters from Paris it appears, by the Agitation which the Court was in, that they expected this Blow. The following is the Substance of what they contain: 'Since the 28th of last Month seven Couriers have passed through this City from the Low-Countries to Versailles, with Dispatches relating to the Nomination and Choice that the Provinces of the Republick have made of a Stadtholder. The Consternation that this News has raised in Paris is incredible, especially as People had flatter'd themselves with the Hopes of very soon seeing either a general Peace concluded, or a Neutrality with the Dutch; the Court having been very industrious in raising those Hopes, in order to constrain his Enemies to yield to such a Peace as should be honourable and beneficial to the Nation; but this Disappointment has caused a Part of the Mystery to be discover'd, and has open'd the Eyes of credulous People, and indeed, of the Nation in general. It has been discovered, and even publickly spread abroad, that treating of Peace with the Crowns of Great Britain and Hungary was entirely out of the Question, and that the Court of Versailles had only sent M. du Theil to Breda, at the Solicitation of the States-General, to disguise their future Views, and deceive the Courts of London and Vienna: That the sole Design of sending the French Minister to Breda, was to press the States-General to sign the Neutrality, to the End that their Provinces might be respected by the Troops of France, and that his Majesty might thereby be enabled to detach a Body of 40 or 50,000 Men to join the Army of Marshal Belleisle in Provence, and to that of the Infant Don Philip, in order to repass the Var, re-enter Italy, and attack the Territories of the King of Sardinia.

'As to the Army under the Command of Marshal Saxe, the Motions which it now makes is disguised, and not such as that General would have made, according to the Plan settled, in case the Republick had embraced the Neutrality. The Design was quite otherwise, as we have been inform'd, and as plainly appears by the slow Pace with which the Body under Court Clermont moved to approach Namur and the Marshal. It being the Siege of Luxembourgh which was to have been undertaken by him, as soon as the Succours should have been set out for Italy. All these Plans had been concerted and agreed upon between the Courts of France, Naples, and Spain; but the Scheme of the Neutrality failing, and the Election of a Stadtholder taking Place, have entirely defeated the Projects of the Court, and caused a great Agitation in the City.

Extract of the Register of Resolutions of the Lords the States of Zealand, May 12.

'It is found good and agreed to order and command all Governors, Commanders, and Commanding Officers, as well by Sea as Land, of Towns, Forts, Batteries, Ships, and all other Persons whatsoever, under the Command of their Noble Mightineſſes the Lords States of Zealand, as it is hereby ordered and commanded to attack, ſeize, and bring in all Ships, as well in Harbour as out of the ſame, coming from the French Enemy's Harbours or Coaſts, and not being able to do that to ſink or deſtroy in the beſt Manner it ſhall be poſſible for them, and not to ſuffer them, under Pretence of any contrary Orders whatſoever, to navigate unmoleſted. To which End, an Extract of this Reſolution ſhall be ſent to the Voting Towns of the State, that each of them may make the proper Uſe thereof, and alſo to the Deputies of the Admiralty, deſiring them to give Notice thereof to the Chief and other Officers, being under the Orders of their Noble Mightineſſes, that they conduct themſelves thereby,
